Hospital Board In Routine Session

Following is a record of the proceedings of the Wainwright Municipal Hospital Board, at its regular meeting held in the hospital on Saturday, August 13th, when the members of this board present were Trustees J. Fuller, C. Bleasdale, J. O'Keefe and D. Gardner, with A. Adams acting secretary-treasurer in the absence of J. W. Stuart.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and on motion of Trustee Bleasdale, were adopted.

Moved by Trustee O'Keefe—That the proposed of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act be James Charles Ford be accepted.—Carried.

Moved by Trustee Gardner—That the account of Mr. Schick be corrected, deducting Mr. Schick's bill from amount owing the hospital.—Carried.

Bills and accounts amounting to $462.01 were presented and on motion by Trustee Bleasdale, these were ordered paid.

Moved by Trustee Gardner—That the secretary write Billie R. M.D. advising them that past due requirements must be paid at once.

The matrons report was presented as follows:
Patients admitted 78
Patients discharged 81
At hospital July 1st 12
Maternity cases 11
Infants born 14
Medical cases 30
Surgical cases 37

Horse Disease Fight Being Delayed

Shortage of "dick" vaccine used in the campaign to stamp out sleeping sickness among horses in this province is causing considerable delay in the conduct of the work of veterinarians, according to Dr. Percy R. Tibot, provincial veterinarian.

Dr. Tibot stated that manufacturers of the vaccine could not cope with the demand and he pointed out that the disease has now broken out in British Columbia and that in Saskatchewan and Manitoba it has shown no signs of abating. In addition, the disease is prevalent in the United States.

Another Old-Timer Passes to Beyond

On Wednesday last relatives and friends were shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mr. G. MacLachlan, at the age of 62 years, who having passed to his reward in the early morning hours from a heart attack suffered in his sleep.

Mr. MacLachlan was born and raised near Strathroy, Ont., and later farmed for some ten years at Petrolia, Ont. It was there in 1906 he was married to Mary Ann Beggs.

In 1909 they moved west and settled on a farm at Hardisty. They came to Wainwright 1928 and have resided here since.

In addition to his wife, there are left to mourn, his son, Gordon, of Windsor, Ont., and two daughters, Mrs. Robt. Haire and Mrs. Chris. Harris, both of Wainwright. There are also two grand-daughters, as well as two brothers and a sister in the east.

The funeral was held on Friday last, at St. Andrew's (Pres.) church, Rev. T. E. Armstrong (in the absence of Rev. W. Brooker on holiday) conducting the service both there and at the graveside in Wainwright cemetery.

Favorites among the deceased were wung, and the pall bearers were Messrs. J. Patterson, R. Deyell, L. Moss, L. Alexander, P. Love and H. McDonald.

A lovely offering of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which he was held by a large circle of friends and neighbors.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. MacLachlan wish to thank their many friends and neighbors who were so kind to help, and for the sympathy and floral tokens extended to them in their recent bereavement by the death of a loving husband and father.

MRS. G. MACLACHLAN AND FAMILY.

The young daughter of Wm. Logue of Hope Valley was brought into the hospital with a fractured arm last week. The injury resulted from a fall.

PROBATION AVOIDS CHAOS IN INDUSTRY

The practice of probation in the Turner Valley oil fields will be widely discussed, perhaps frequently by those who do not know just what it means.

Probation is simply sharing the available market for oil among the producers.

For example, suppose there were an oil field with 10 wells, capable of producing 8,000 barrels a day. Given a market for it, all there would be no difficulty. But assume that the market available from this field is only 4,000 barrels a day. Under probation each would be allowed to produce only half as much as it could produce if it were running wide open.

Probation is desirable not alone in the interest of the market. It is of great benefit to the consumer.

Potential production and marketable production are two different things. In this is found the underlying reason for probation.

Minutes Grizzly Bear Council

The regular meeting of the Council of the Municipal District of Grizzly Bear was held in the office at Wainwright on Saturday, August 13th.

Reeve H. H. Hodgins took the chair at 10:30 a.m., with all councillors present.

Minutes of the previous meeting and financial statement were read and on motion, approved.

Positions, with the required number of signatures, requesting Council not to enact municipal doctor bylaw until 10:30 a.m., with all councillors present.

It was agreed to hold elections on Saturday, September 10th at the following places: Div. 3, Vasey school; Div. 2, M'Intosh school; Div. 3, the home of P. Jensen, N.E. 28-47-6; Div. 4, Thorncliffe school; Div. 5, Woodvale school; Div. 6, Wildwood school.

An application for settlement under the Land Settlement Plan was disallowed.

A letter was received from the Canadian Red Cross Society, requesting a report and recommendation with respect to an application for clothing, etc. It was agreed that recommendation be withheld.

The epidemic of sleeping sickness among horses was discussed, and it was agreed on motion that Secretary phone Dr. Tibot's office and order 100 doses of vaccine.

Arrangements were made for the collection of seed grain accounts, with prompt payment expected, or at least within ten days after threshing is completed.

Communications received: From the Department of Agriculture, forwarding a supply of three-barbed wire; from C.P.R., notice of appeal against wild land tax on certain properties, several parcels under crop and grazing, lessening being exempt.

Road sheets amounting to $3594.86 were ordered passed.

Meeting adjourned at 5:30 p.m.

Duck Season Opening Now Set

Regulations released in Ottawa under provisions of the Migratory Birds Protection Act call for the opening of the duck hunting season two weeks later than usual, while zones also have been changed for the coming season, according to W. H. Wallace, Alberta fish and game commissioner.

Heretofore, the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers have been the dividing line between the north and south of the province for duck hunting purposes. Now the Red Deer river, running from Compeer at the Saskatchewan boundary, is the dividing line.

North of the Red Deer river line, the duck shooting season will open on Sept. 15 and will terminate on Nov. 15.

South of the Red Deer river the season will open on Oct. 1 and will close on Nov. 30.

North of the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers, the season will be opened on Sept. 1 and south of this line on Sept. 14, while duck shooting in all parts of the province closed on Nov. 14.

Bag limits this year have been increased to 36, as against 12 last year.

Former Teacher Married, Week End

The marriage of Miss Edythe Alberta Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Love, of Wainwright, to Mr. William George Loudfoot, of Edmonton, took place quietly at the United church home on Sunday last at 1 p.m., Rev. T. E. Armstrong, B.A., officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a graceful gown of blue lace over tulle, with a matching hair hat, and carriage of rosebuds.

A reception was held in the Wainwright hotel, and later the happy couple left for the Pacific coast, the bride travelling in a smart two-piece tailcoat of royal blue wool, with a blouse of rose sheer. On their return early in September they will take up residence in Edmonton.

The bride has been a very popular member of the Wainwright teaching staff and with her husband, she, a former resident of town, they enjoy with them the best wishes of a host of friends.

NEW MEMBERS ARE APPOINTED VARSITY STAFF

Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the University of Alberta, announces the following appointments:

Floyd S. B. Rodman, M.Sc. (Saskatchewan) to assistant professor in physiology and pharmacology replacing Dr. M. K. McPhail, who resigned to become head of the department of physiology at Dalhousie University. Mr. Rodman was formerly on the staff of the University of Saskatchewan as assistant professor of physiology and has latterly been engaged in further post-graduate work in physiology at the University of Minnesota.

Robert G. H. Cormack, Ph.D. (Toronto) has been appointed assistant lecturer in botany, replacing Dr. A. B. Brown, who resigned to accept the leadership of the department of biology at Haskins Scientific College. Dr. Cormack was formerly lecturer in botany at McMaster University.

Moved by Coun. Smallwood—That relief be extended to Mrs. Bergquist for $12.00 until Sept. 8th.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Bladley—That the report of the Reeve and Secretary re Court of Appeal re Wild Land Tax be opened.

Road Surfacing Progress Reported

Within a month there will be a "blotter" main highway from the international boundary to Edmonton, except for the 65-mile section being rebuilt between Red Deer and Crossfield, according to announcement by Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works.

First course hard surfacing of the highway between Wainwright and national park and Banff national park has been completed. Now crews are engaged with "blotting" on the section south of Edmonton, while the "seal coat" or second course surfacing is being given to the stretch between the capital city and Millet.

Good progress is being made on the new Red Deer to Crossfield highway, where it is expected that graveling operations will be undertaken just as soon as possible.

It is expected that the Red Deer-Crossfield section will be given the "blotter" treatment early next year, after which motorists will have a hard surfaced highway all the way from the border to Edmonton.

The Alberta Motor Association has been waging a vigorous campaign for years as to the need of hard surfacing Alberta main highways, pointing out that only by carrying out such a policy will this province obtain an adequate share of the U.S. traffic that, half share of the border on account of the unsatisfactory road conditions in this province.

Wainwright Bank Enjoys 30th Birthday

Next week Wainwright's bank, the Bank of Montreal, a unit of Canada's oldest bank, will observe the 30th anniversary of its establishment.

Pioneer days in Wainwright are commemorated by this event, for the history of the bank is as old as the town itself; as a matter of fact the bank opened for business less than two months after the town site was laid.

On August 21, 1908, the bank opened in temporary quarters in the Wainwright Hotel, then owned by the late M. L. Foster, a one-time mayor of the town, and few months later it erected its own building, a wooden structure on two lots purchased from the Grand Trunk Pacific. Developments of the past 30 years have increased demands for its services, due to the rapid growth of the community, accelerated by the coming of the railway, necessitated more commodious premises and the bank, feeling sure that the town was going to make even greater progress, constructed a two-story building at the corner of Main Street and Second Avenue. These premises were occupied until July, 1929, when they were destroyed by the fire which wiped out the business section; and in the following year the present premises were built on the same site.

It is a fair cry from the time when the late H. G. Morrison, the first manager of the bank, and his staff travelled by stage coach to reach the settlement.

The banking operations were first conducted in the bar-room of a hotel (which had not yet obtained a license) and Mr. Morrison kept the cash in a tin box locked up in a trunk in his hotel bedroom. There were but a scant half-dozen buildings in the town and, with the exception of the hotel and one or two stores, all were of the shack variety spread around the bald prairie, or by the side of the lake which then occupied a considerable part of the area that is now the center of the town.

In those days there were no rail connections with Wainwright, and the incoming settlers, who were chiefly ranchers, were obliged to freight in their supplies from Hardisty, 30 miles distant. The district was very sparsely settled but homesteaders were arriving.

Harvesting General Says Crop Report

Harvesting is now fairly general in the Prairie Provinces, with rapid progress being made in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and southern Alberta. Wet weather in many districts has temporarily delayed cutting but the moisture has been beneficial to late crops and pastures.

In central Alberta warm weather is needed to hasten the ripening of crops. The effects of wet weather in many districts has temporarily delayed cutting but the moisture has been beneficial to late crops and pastures.

Harvesting is now fairly general in the Prairie Provinces, with rapid progress being made in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and southern Alberta. Wet weather in many districts has temporarily delayed cutting but the moisture has been beneficial to late crops and pastures.

Conditions generally are satisfactory in Alberta except in northwestern and southeastern districts. Cutting, which had commenced in most districts, will be delayed for a few days by recent rains. The moisture will, however, prove beneficial to late autumn grains. Further hail damage has occurred at widely scattered points. Quebec province continues to enjoy ideal growing conditions, with warm weather, accompanied by light rains in many districts. Prospects as a whole are good for a satisfactory harvest. In Ontario harvesting is well advanced and good average yields of the main crops are in prospect in all sections. Moisture conditions are satisfactory and growing crops continue to make favorable progress.

Looks Like Big Money at Stake!

The extent to which the people of Alberta have invested their money in the "big eastern lending institutions" Premier Albertart is trying his best to outline with the aid of a striking way in figures submitted recently before the Rowell Commission at Toronto.

In the brief submitted by the Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association it was disclosed that Alberta citizens have invested no less than 68 millions of dollars of their savings with these companies. The figure was prepared from a survey of the liabilities of Canadian loan, trust and life insurance companies.

In short, residents of the province have a direct interest to the extent of over 68 millions of dollars in the present investments of these companies.

On the other hand the companies themselves hold mortgages to an aggregate principal amount of only $40 millions in the province, with further sums invested in policy loans, bonds, etc.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity of expressing to all kind friends and especially to the doctors and nurses at the hospital our hearty thanks for the sympathy and care extended to Mr. W. Reynolds during his long stay in hospital recently.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Rust is the smartest of the new spring nail polishes. This shade takes care of anything you wear in slacks, including your complexion. All the colors that have yellow in them, including the greens, browns, orange-reds, are grand with a touch of rust at the fingertips. . . . The new rust nail polish has an added advantage, for it produces two effects from the same bottle. One coat gives the nails a soft peach-bloom tone for conservative moments. An added coat over the first, gives a bright and sparkling effect. A novel window display in a Fifth avenue New York shop showed the contents of the average woman's handbag which, judging from the articles found, seems to be closely related to the small boy's trouser pocket. Among the more startling items were an electric light bulb, a piece of lump sugar, and a partially consumed sandwich. The average handbag contained the following:

book, snapshots, scraps of paper, keys, pencils, small change, bills, handkerchiefs, compact, lipstick, comb, cigarettes, matches, pins, letters and a mirror. The object of the survey was to make sure that the new handbags for spring offered sufficient room for all of lady's needs.

Household Hint: A young white turnip, scraped and mixed with a little mustard, vinegar and milk is an excellent substitute for horseradish sauce to serve with roast beef. It is not so strong and pungent as horseradish and is preferred by many.

In the quaint language of the year 1288, an ancient Scotch law recognized the Leap year prerogative of women: "It is statut and ordaind that during the reign of his maist laissh Mageste, for ilk year known as lepe year, ilk maiden ladye of both hiegh and lowe estate shall have liberte to bespake ye man she likes."

Motorist's Guardian Angel

(By Maxine Davis in Reader's Digest)

When a pink-cheeked youth signed me up as a member of the American Automobile Association, I had no idea I was getting a guardian angel, a friend in need, a personal accident insurance policy, and a chaperone, as well as road maps and a shiny emblem—all for a few cents a year.

I was about to set out alone in a second-hand car on a 10,000 mile exploring expedition into the wilds of the West. Before I had gone far, I found the Three A's to be the Great White Father of motorists.

I found a reasonable, non-profit-making co-operative institution with the efficiency of a great factory and the human sympathy of a competent mother of five; an organization which aids and protects its members in India as well as in Indiana; and which not only renders varied and invaluable personal assistance but also performs civic service of such quality and significance as to command the time and effort of leading citizens in all the 48 states.

Organized in 1902, when there were 23,000 cars in the United States and roads were covered wagon trails, it was from the first owned by its members, who today number nearly a million. Its dividends are paid to them in service, and its surplus, if any, is devoted to the public good. Its elected officials have always served without pay.

The services it performs range from the commonplace to those you'd never suspect. There are five men constantly on the road inspecting and reporting on hotels. All are carefully checked annually. Any complaint lodged is promptly investigated. Two AAA cars do nothing but visit tourist camps.

The main service of the Association is travel service and protection. When you want to know the quickest and safest route, you go to your local auto club as naturally as you look in the newspaper for the weather forecasts. You know you will be supplied with maps, advice concerning the best route, information about construction on the way, detours and their conditions, etc.

These maps are made by a staff of draftsmen working at national headquarters the year round. Information is gathered for the revision of these maps by 25 scout cars constantly combing the highways and byways. Road bulletins, gleaned from the scout cars, branch clubs and state highway departments, are sent to each office in a given area at frequent intervals dependent upon conditions.

But just road maps are pretty arid gates to adventure and romance. So the AAA has published the most complete tour books imaginable, listing the towns of importance in each state and Canada, relating the most glamorous portions of their history, describing their natural beauties, and advising you in terms of Lorelei allure what you can see and do along the way.

Its foreign travel division handles all details for a traveler going anywhere. Through affiliation with the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs and the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme, comprising the principal motor clubs in foreign countries, it is empowered to issue customs documents and other papers essential to free movement across international borders. It arranges transportation for your car at the lowest current rates, and furnishes you with international driving permits and license plates. At 27 foreign ports, the AAA doesn't even leave you to its foreign affiliates. It has its own representatives to get you started properly. You have to carry the tags of the country in which you land because we are the only nation in the world not signatory to a treaty which permits citizens of one country to drive with its own plates in another. (The reason for this is that in other countries licenses are issued and controlled by the central government; ours are granted by the 48 states.)

Once you're on your way, you make use of the services of the 48 affiliated clubs in 65 countries just as you enjoy those in the United States. And you find them in the most extraordinary places: in Beirut and New Zealand; in Finland and Venezuela.

The AAA gives you a prepared manual of conversation in English, French, Italian and German including the words you will need most on the road, what a policeman is apt to say what occurs at the border, road warnings and phrases, and names of all the parts of your car. If you can't pronounce them, you can always point to them!

The personal accident insurance system is one of the most satisfactory features of the Three A's. With your membership you receive an accident policy. If you are killed, lose both hands or both feet or two eyes, or suffer a combination of two of these calamities, the AAA member policy pays $10,000. It grants $500 for loss of one hand, one foot, or one eye.

You also get a bail bond with your membership. Suppose you are arrested in your haste to get home before midnight. It's bail or jail. Few of us carry enough money for bail. But we don't want to spend the night behind the bars, either. So with this bond we phone one of the 5000 bonded agents or AAA club representatives authorized to execute a bail bond.

Other services of the Auto Clubs to you and your car form a long catalogue. Did you ever get stuck in the mud? The Three A's will come with a four-wheel drive car to pull you out. Within liberal limits the Association acts as your handy man on the road. Perhaps your battery goes dead and you need a "reel" or you want chains put on after a sudden storm. Or you have a conscientiously locked your car and hate to break the lock or window. The Auto Club can be summoned in these and other emergencies.

The tinkering or road service does not take over half an hour there will be no charge. You can be towed five to ten miles without cost. Tires are changed free but not repaired. In some places, through a novel co-operative savings plan, the clubs save you money on purchases for your car.

Naturally, the extent of free service varies from place to place, but the AAA, listed first in hundreds of directories throughout the country, has made it possible generally to reach a phone instead of a wrench. In the city of Washington alone the club has 12 operators at its switchboard, and on one day last winter handled 1360 calls for emergency help.

There are still other features included in your membership. For instance, there's a notary at all AAA offices. If you will furnish your Club with the necessary papers and fees it will secure your new license plates for you each year, and save you that aggravating wait in line.

It offers a reward for your car if it is stolen. And also offers a $100 reward for hit-and-run drivers. There is a claim adjustment service. You're away from home, and have an accident for which the other fellow is to blame. He knows it, but he also knows it will cost you more in time and money to sue and collect your claim than the repair bill for damages to your car. The adjustment service was designed for just such a dilemma.

The civic functions of the AAA are widespread and important. It took a leading part in the organization and extension of the schoolboy patrol movement. Today more than 200,000 young patrolmen are safeguarding the lives of 5,000,000 of their schoolmates. You can see them with their white belts and badges in 1800 cities and towns.

It pioneers safety education in the schools through safety lessons and safety posters. And the auto clubs are continually fostering safety campaigns in innumerable communities. In the interest of public safety, many clubs provide members with an efficient brake and headlight testing and adjusting service.

It was, moreover, the agency which formulated the Safety-Responsibility law aimed at control of the reckless and financially irresponsible driver, now in force in 26 states: the District of Columbia, and all the Provinces of Canada, with the exception of Quebec. The Three A's have fought many of the motorist's battles in Congress and in state legislatures. Through the efforts of organized motorists under the oval emblem, the principle was established that all special motor vehicle taxes must be used for legitimate road purposes.

It pioneered in road marking, and proved the value of reliable route numbering so thoroughly that that function is now part of almost every state highway department in the country. Some states, particularly in the West, still leave this to the motor clubs. Some cities have had no markers until the Auto Club secured them. New York City had no route numbers on its streets until a few years ago, when they were hung after a four-year campaign during which the Auto Club co-operated with city officials in getting almost 5000 permits from telephone, light companies, etc., before the signs could be placed.

WHEN USING WILSON'S FLY PADS READ DIRECTIONS CAREFULLY AND FOLLOW THEM EXACTLY. Each pad will kill flies all day and every day for three weeks. 3 pads in each packet. 10 CENTS PER PACKET. at Drugists, Grocers, General Stores. WHY PAY MORE? THE WILSON FLY PAD CO., Hamilton, Ont.

Besides its regular work, the AAA is fortified for every emergency. A business man burst into a branch office and gasped, "I've got to find my partner. If I don't find him by tomorrow night, he's going to lose $10,000."

The partner, it appeared, was in Canada, and when last heard from was heading for the Gaspé Peninsula. AAA experts went to work. They found when he had left Quebec, computed how far the missing partner would be likely to travel, and determined which roads a stranger to the country would probably choose. At length they drew a small circle on a map and said, "Search here."

Messages were wired to the police in this area, and within three hours the partner was on the long distance telephone saving his $10,000.

SHALLOW VS. DEEP-TILLED
SUMMER-FALLOW

Shallow tillage is coming into more general use as a method of controlling weeds and soil drifting on summer-fallow.

Shallow tillage makes it possible to graze weeds and destroy them by seedlings to better advantage than where plowing is practiced. In the case of deep tillage and ploughing, many of the weed seeds are buried so deeply they will not germinate until they are brought nearer the surface by subsequent ploughings or deep tillage operations. Thus shallow tillage tends to reduce the weed seed content of the soil while deep tillage tends to increase it.

Deep tillage or ploughing the summer-fallow tends to intensify rather than control soil drifting for the reason that all stubble and other plant refuse is buried in the soil. Shallow tillage leaves part of stubble at the surface, thus providing some protection against wind erosion.

Shallow tillage in itself will not control soil drifting, but must be used in conjunction with good farming practices. Farmers in Central and Northern Alberta, where the binder is the implement used to harvest the crop, tend to leave too short a stubble.
In many cases little or no use is made of the straw after threshing. It is, therefore, much better to leave as much stubble as possible and still be pleased with daughter's independence in dressing as well as with the ease with which this frock launders. The pattern gives it the kind of completness you want and make this a play

SEND IN YOUR NEWS!

There has never been a newspaper printed that satisfied everybody. But there is a very simple method by which better newspapers can be produced and that is for those who subscribe to them to take an individual interest in seeing that they get more local and personal news. If you have visitors or if you have been on a visit, send or phone the information to your home-town newspaper. Every little item of a local or personal nature helps that much to make a still better newspaper. That is how you can help make your newspaper more interesting, and you are invited to start doing so at once.

You have been offered transparent wrappings and transparent sippers for inhibiting soft drinks. One of the newer members of the ubiquitous clan that looks like glass and is as light as air, is a line of dollies and runner sets that are made of fish-net fabric of slit cellulose. The runners are obligingly washable and lend a smart note to any table setting.

Does the factory threaten to usurp kitchen rites? A practical study comparison was made of commercially prepared food mixtures, gingerbread, muffins, biscuits, chocolate pudding and gelatin, with the homemade products. Time value was rated at 30 cents an hour. In no instance did the commercial product exceed in price, the homemade, by more than eleven cents. Ease of preparation was in favor of the ready-to-mix. Texture and palatability received comparable rating and in some instances, the commercial rated higher than the homemade product.

able to tie the sheaf. It is much better to incorporate as much straw as possible in the surface soil where it will be a benefit in controlling soil drifting than to go to all the extra work involved in handling long-strawed sheaves and then burn the straw when in the stack. The one-way disc and other shallow tillage implements soon break up the long stubble into smaller pieces so that it will not interfere with the operation of any tillage machine.

Experiments conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, at Le-Combe, have shown that the use of a cover crop on shallow tilled summer fallow effectively controls soil drifting. The cover crop consists of one-half bushel of wheat seeded the middle of August. The date of seeding is important. Earlier seeding develops more growth than is necessary and thus uses more plant food and moisture than necessary and which could be utilized to better advantage by the succeeding crop, while late seeding does not develop sufficient growth to provide a protective covering.

The most approved method of summer-fallowing for districts with soil and climatic conditions similar to Lacombe is as follows: As much stubble as possible should be left in harvesting the crop on land intended for summer-fallowing. This land should be disked or cultivated after harvest or early the following year to promote weed seed germination. If a long stubble has been left, the land should be worked with a one-way disk as soon as the weeds have made a fair start, or as soon as possible after the spring seeding is completed. If a short stubble has been left a diskfoot cultivator will do good work. Subsea rodeo outfit and were bought by the Dumb Friends' League. Because one could break the horses and they were about to be destroyed, the Duchess, who is a famous horse in making them as docile as her own horses. Some haul carts and plows. Others have been broken to

The Family
DOCTOR
by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

THOSE OLD-TIME REMEDIES

Old friends are, by virtue of their lasting qualities, usually the best; and so it is with medicines—there are few better or safer than the time-tried. Some of our most valuable agents for healing the sick may be said to be hoary with age—yet we know their action much more thoroughly than many of the new remedies, thus we find them more trustworthy.

I have before me a patriarch in medical literature—a book 115 years old; it is interesting to note the medicines in use today that were utilized then, and the list is not short. Camphor is one; opium the good servant and the bad master; alcohol (spelled "alkohol") of which the same may be truly said; mercury, then called "quick-silver," and two of its derivatives, calomel and "mass of quick-silver." These and many others remain in use today, and doubtless will continue to live.

The pulitzer and the liniment so popular then, and the much-used "salve" are fast becoming unheard of, and, perhaps, wisely so. The old-fashioned smear, grime and stain, as well as the nauseating bolus have been relegated to the rear, and we rejoice thereat. The alkaloid science has about replaced the crude drug. Medicine has held pace with world-advancement very creditably.

May I suggest here that when you clean house this spring you neglect not your household remedies; brighten and fill the castor-oil bottle, the camphor, the iodine container, the steatite-of-zinc shaker, the carbolic vaseline jug. Be ready for most emergencies with good, old and time-tried remedies that you know the most about.
It will make the doctor's task lighter should you be compelled to summon him. A roll of adhesive tape comes handy when needed. Don't keep active poisons on hand, such as strychnia tablets, acetone, bella-donna, and such like, unless with full knowledge of your physician.

CO-OPERATION

The most effective boost of a town is organized and co-operative support.

The difference between success and failure in making a better town and better business is the difference between co-operation on the one hand and the lack of it on the other.

Too often business men do not understand and appreciate the full value of organized co-operation. Towns that wish to keep their proper place in the march of progress and development must keep awake.

In order to make any programme of advancement successful, the entire citizenship must keep right behind the public bodies and private individuals who give of their time and talent to make the community a better place for all to live in.

And you will not find any better advocate of home town improvement than the home town newspaper—which is the last word in co-operative effort. Every individual reader adds to the value of the advertisement; every additional advertisement adds to the value of the advertisement. The volume of advertising is the community's bid for outside interest; the wide spread of outside interest builds the community and industry, for it is upon commerce and industry that any community thrives.

And the community is made up of you and me, who start the ball of prosperity rolling by being regular readers and supporters of the home town paper and its advertisers. Let's co-operate.

"WE MISS YOU, DADDY"

The following editorial was printed in the Rockyview, Conn., Journal, about a year ago. Thereafter, to the editor's surprise, it was reprinted by most of the other papers of the state, and was used by highway safety officials, insurance companies, accident prevention organizations, motorist publications and by others who are fighting the great war against the toll of automobile deaths. Here it is—and any motorist will surely think twice about taking chances after reading it:

"Tuesday morning there was a fatal accident on the Minterburn Hill and when the medical examiner was going through the pockets of the dead man—a telegram was found. It was not very long, just the ordinary ten word length, but it was a message that would make any father happy. It read WE MISS YOU DADDY. WHEN ARE YOU COMING HOME?"

"That was all. It was a message sent by one of the children of the man who was killed. He had received the message and was homesick. The clothes were minus money but in his pocket he carried that message.

"Those who have little children, and those who have one little child, can think of the great blow to the child when the father did return home—dead."

"Daddy" will be missed by those children in the long years ahead. No longer will they have his support, his earnings, and more important, his companionship.

"If ever there was a reason for people driving more carefully on the road it is that they might get in an accident and deprive their own child of some other child of their Daddy."

"More might be written, but just let us repeat those words: 'We miss you, Daddy. When are you coming home?'"

Mr. Jerry Heffernan and Mr. Lou Howes, of Edmonton, spent a few days in town last week. Both are interested in the oil business.

CONTINUATION OF WAINWRIGHT BANK ENJOYS 30th BIRTHDAY

rising daily. Upon the arrival of the railway in 1911 the town developed rapidly and this growth was given an impetus when the people of Denwood, a village which had sprung up a few miles away, moved their homes and chattels to Wainwright and settled there to take advantage of the transportation facilities.

With its population of more than 1,000, its substantial brick and concrete buildings, which were erected following the disastrous fire of 1920, its fine schools and churches, Wainwright today demonstrates the spirit of enterprise with which its citizens have always been imbued. The mixed farming and grain growing carried on in the district make valuable contributions to the wealth of the province and prospects are excellent for the town sharing in the production of oil, which is becoming of increasing importance in Alberta from month to month.

Being the site of a National Buffalo Park, Wainwright, with its herd of buffalo the largest in the world, is yearly becoming increasingly attractive to the tourist.

Providing uninterrupted banking service to Wainwright and the surrounding district for three decades, the bank has been an active partner in the development of the town since early days, its efficient and up-to-date facilities being those of an institution that is nation-wide in scope.

H. G. Morrison, or "Dutchy" as he was familiarly known, the first manager of the bank, was succeeded by S. E. James, who is now in charge of the Oshawa, Ont., office. Later managers were H. C. Munn, at present in charge of the Portage la Prairie branch, the late C. H. Rowe and John Cuthbertson, who assumed the management at Melville, Sask., when leaving here in 1929. C. W. McLeider, the present manager, was appointed in November, 1933, succeeding D. L. Plimpton, who is now attached to the main branch at Winnipeg.

HISTORY OF PARENT BANK

Behind the Bank of Montreal as an institution there lies a history closely interwoven with that of the Dominion of Canada. In fact, its history began fifty years before Confederation. It was on the 23rd of June, 1817, that nine merchants of Montreal signed a charter of association for the establishment of the "Montreal Bank". This action marked the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, which today holds the distinction of being by far the oldest institution of its kind in British North America, and one of the largest financial institutions in the British Empire. It also established the beginnings of the Canadian banking system.

To realize the conditions which prevailed when the Bank first brought organized financing to the relief of that early generation of Canadian business men, it is necessary to delve deeply into the history of the country. The only organized portions of what is now the Dominion of Canada were the Province of Upper and Lower Canada and the Maritime Provinces. Their whole population was less than 400,000, and that of Montreal, the chief trading centre, less than 20,000. The development of the local commerce was hampered by lack of facilities for exchange. The country was too poor to afford the luxury of a metallic circulating medium, and not only American, British and French, but also Portuguese and Spanish coins were legal tender, and the ratios of exchange into colonial money of account were subject to frequent variations. As a consequence, domestic trade was carried on principally by barter, and international trade was on a very uncertain basis.

Such were the conditions when the Bank of Montreal began business on November 3rd, 1817, in modest rented premises, with a paid-up capital of $350,000. In a very short time this institution became the focal point of the business of the colony. It provided a medium of exchange such as had hitherto been lacking, nursed along the early enterprises of the country, and straightened out the difficulties of inter-urban, interprovincial and international trading.

Everywhere as conditions have become ripe, the Bank has planted its branches for facilitating the agricultural development of the country, its manufacturing industries and its general commerce.

Today the Bank has over 500 branches distributed throughout Canada and Newfoundland, while its paid-up capital and reserves represent a total in excess of $75,000,000, and its assets amount of over $80,000,000. The value of the Bank to the country, however, is not to be measured so much by the amount of its capital, or by the size of its dividends, as by the security it has given to those who have trusted it, the facilities it has furnished for the exchange and the increase of commodities, and the assistance it has contributed to the development of the country.

The branches of the Bank of Montreal are situated alike in the large business centres and in residential districts in agricultural communities and in mining camps. Everywhere in Canada it is a factor in the life of the community. Today, notwithstanding its influential connections it is essentially a bank of the people, a bank to which all classes can come with confidence in the security of deposits entrusted to its care, and with assurance that every facility consistent with sound banking will be extended to those who seek its services.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Brunker and Mrs. Simmons motored to the city on business on Monday afternoon.

The week-end rains have again held up harvesting operations to some extent. Fortunately no hail came with the terrific wind and water storm, although it is probable that some of the grain will be lodged. A few hot, sunny days like today (Tuesday) however will make us all chary again.

By-law No. 56, a By-law of the Municipal District of Battle River No. 423 for the purpose of authorizing the purchase of a mainline for Div. 3 week to holiday with his brother Jack at Heath.

Rev. and Mrs. Rickard, who have holidaying at Banff, are expected to return this week end, and Mr. Rickard will take the services at St. Thomas' again next Sunday.

Accountant McCulloch, of the bank staff, had a nasty experience on Sunday. While driving with his wife and her sister to Unity they were storm stayed between Provost and Hinton and had to spend the night on the highway in their car.

The heir to the big Dodge fortune, who had only been married two weeks met with a serious accident on Sunday when he picked up a bunch of dynamite near their honeymoon camp. The explosive severely injured several of the party and while being taken to hospital by boat the young man jumped overboard (coated with his pains) and was drowned.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Brunker and Mrs. Simmons motored to the city on business on Monday afternoon.

The week-end rains have again held up harvesting operations to some extent. Fortunately no hail came with the terrific wind and water storm, although it is probable that some of the grain will be lodged. A few hot, sunny days like today (Tuesday) however will make us all chary again.

"REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS"

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Word has been received that Lance Corporal R. B. Bryden, former assistant principal of Wainwright school, received gunshot wounds in his leg while in action and was admitted to hospital for treatment.

On Monday evening two little boys, Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sullivan, and "Buster" Brown, son of the proprietor of the Wainwright hotel, narrowly escaped serious injury. They were driving a team with a hayrack to Creighton's at Sheepskin Flats. Going down a steep grade, the rack slid forward upon the horses, which forthwith bolted. They eventually landed in a popular bluff, upsetting the rack, spraining Jack's ankle and breaking Buster's left arm. The two lads were rushed into town and placed under the doctor's care.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. McLeod, following a two month visit in town with their son, Postmaster McLeod, returned this week to their home in Saskatchewan.

TEN YEARS AGO

On Wednesday, while the Wheat milk wagon was en route home, a big touring car approached it from the front and was travelling at such a rate that it did not allow the driver of the milk wagon to pull off the road. The car collided with the rear of the wagon, causing the horses to bolt and throw their driver. The milk wagon was badly damaged and unfortunately the driver was unable to get the numbers on the license plate of the car, which failed to stop.

Mr. Ed Goddard has completed the erection of a new modern home on his farm at Gilt Edge.

Messrs. R. Robertson and J. Alderman returned from a week spent at Cold Lake. They brought back with them some 200 pounds of beautiful trout.

Mr. Alec Sawers is now installed in his new business premises on Second avenue. An addition is being built on the back for living quarters.

Mrs. Chas. Ham, after an extended visit with her mother, Mrs. F. Springer, in town, returned on Monday to her home in California.

A gang of men have been employed during the past week, gravelling the new road to Buffalo Park from the gate to the crossing.

Mrs. J. Richardson unfortunately fell down the cellar steps at her home and cracked three ribs.

After an extended holiday at her old home in Scotland, Mrs. Sterling Tory arrived back in town this week.

Mrs. and Mrs. C. A. Walton left on Monday for a motor trip to Nelson, B.C., to inspect the new fruit farm which Mr. Walton recently purchased. They were accompanied by Mr. W. McKeever.

Sheepskin Flats

Mr. Delmar Plaxton, of Gilt Edge, spent last week at the home of Mrs. Templeton. He is taking violin lessons from the Templeton Brothers.

Bettie and Joe Roberts are spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Torrance, of Wainwright.

Miss Madeline Bission, of White Cloud, is working at the home of Mrs. Marvin Plaxton.

Mr. Mac Templeton purchased a threshing machine.

A large crowd attended the Social Credit meeting, where Mr. Mason delivered a splendid speech which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

SYDENHAM

The Misses Merrick returned to their home on Saturday after spending a couple of weeks in Vancouver, visiting with relatives.

Mr. Hutchinson, from Edmonton, is the new teacher for the coming year.

Mrs. Glenn Alexander, from Turner Valley, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. C. M. Alexander.

Miss Jean Rutherford has been the guest of Miss Shirley Woodward for the past week.

Mrs. Spike and daughter, accompanied by Miss Irene McGee, from Edmonton, are visiting Mrs. F. Plaxton.

At the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. Church, on Monday last, Mr. A. Alexander celebrated his 74th birthday. About 32 relatives and friends were present to mark this occasion.

The farmers are now busy cutting the wheat crop. Rain and damp weather has delayed this operation.

GILT EDGE

The cattle around Baxter Lake are pretty smart. They put down the fences and put stones on the wire, and throw gates open that are wired.

Mrs. F. Adams has returned from Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Goddard are giving the inside of the Pliantville school the once over.

A few of the Gilt Edge boys enjoyed a winter round at Gilt last Sunday and got a slight shower bath while coming home.

A few of the farmers around here have started to cut their crops.

GREENSHIELDS

Repair work has begun on the Northern Elevator and in a few days the house will be fully equipped to handle a share of the new crop. Wilson Construction Co. have charge of the work.

Last Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Valieu and Miss Rita and Mrs. L. I. Carl returned from their month's holiday in Ontario.

Mr. Elmer Valieu, of Picton, Ont., is visiting his brother and family for a short while.

Mrs. Ed Patterson and little son have returned from Lennoxville, Que. where they have been visiting relatives for a month.

ABOUT PEOPLE

J. W. Fraser and his asphalt gang returned from Lacombe where he has been building streets and sidewalks.

Mr. Mike Stang returned last week from Malton where he has been building an oil station for the Gold Standard Refinery.

Mr. Wilfrid Johnson and Mr. Fred Agnew, both of the Melville Refinery, are building homes at the plant, as they both were married recently.

Mr. Arnold Harden is still in Viking hospital where he has lain unconscious since the car accident over three weeks ago. His wife visited him last week and although there is no change, the doctors expect developments at an early date. We understand his daughter Ruth is making satisfactory progress.

THE DIAL REVIEW

by Walter Bates

One of the special events broadcast to attract special interest lately occurred as Lloyd Holmes and Ed Bryant gave an account of the annual Soap Box Derby. It may be hard to visualize the extent of interest in this yearly event, but statistics show that the amazing number of 15,000 Edmontonians crowded the scene of action on McDougall Hill to witness this year's show. Lloyd reports that the models competing this year were absolutely the last word in streamline designing. The record speed this time was 37 seconds, which should be that enough in anybody's language. Different Edmonton business houses contributed some very valuable prizes for the different events, and the sponsor of the show, The Edmonton Journal, gave the lucky winner a brand new bicycle.

The recent disease affecting horses in Alberta is not only a plague to farmers and horse owners, but it's giving the announcers their bad moments too (not by contagion, though). Perhaps you'll agree that there's plenty to worry about when it becomes necessary to say "CENTRAL OXY-ELITIS" instead of just plain sleeping sickness.

A severe electric storm the other night made it necessary to shut down station operation for about an hour. The storm hit at about time to take the air for the Hello North program and northerners were forced to stay up a little later than usual to receive their various messages and greetings.

Does your telephone ever back fire? One of the latest ways and means to evoke screams and muttered curses is, very apt to make a telephone conversation a trifle annoying.

A small tin contraption working along the lines of a spring mouse trap, loaded with an ordinary toy pistol cap, when placed under the telephone receiver, greets the next user of the telephone with a terrific BANG. One of course either drops the receiver or is far too stunned to even offer the expected HELLO. Of course it always adds zest to the developments to have a group of fellow staffers eagerly awaiting your embarrassment. Nice people these funsters.

Circle the Globe in Your Arm Chair—That may sound just a bit on the impossible side, but in reality it's quite possible. Many CICA listeners welcome the return to the air of the popular Ports of Call series. Each Sunday evening at 7:30 this popular story takes the air, each week bringing a thrilling story of some far off country. You'll be able to visit Denmark, France, China, Australia, Finland, Ireland and Czechoslovakia and other far-off places that would be impossible for many of us to reach in any other way. The Alberta Wheat Pool, sponsors of this original program, invite all of their former listeners to join them every Sunday evening at home.

Tomorrow (Thursday) August 18th at 12:00 noon there will be a special broadcast by the CBC network of the opening ceremonies in connection with the formal dedication of the Thousand Islands International Bridge which will link Canada and the United States across the St. Lawrence river. The time of the dedication will make it necessary for the CBC to cancel the 12:00 to 1:00 "Dramatic Hour". Such dignitaries as President Roosevelt, Lord Tweedsmuir and Lady Tweedsmuir, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and many others will be "on the air".

HEATH

An unfortunate accident occurred when the youngest son of Bertie Messer was kicked in the face by a horse and had to be taken to the hospital. St. Patrick's W.A. will meet on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Bartlett, Sr.

Miss June Spornitz is spending a few days with Elsie Ford. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Bill L'Houcq, the occasion being her birthday. About a dozen ladies were present.

GROWING ALFALFA FOR SEED PAYS FARMERS WELL

One crop may be only good feed to thousands of hungry cattle throughout America, but to western Canadian farmers—more of them every year—it is becoming an increasing source of bread and butter revenue. Tiny seeds of alfalfa, as at left, are bringing thousands of dollars in revenue. While its ragged little violet blossoms may look drab beside acres of waving wheat, it is not uncommon that as much as $6,000 be realized from a 100-acre field. The alfalfa farmer laughs at drought as little moisture is required to produce a crop; the perennial plants cannot be damaged materially by hail; soil drifting is impossible as the roots spread thickly and enrich the soil in which they grow.

Girls as well as men work in the fields. In the lower photograph an overalled miss guides a horse pulling a "tripper" through flowering fields. The "tripper," a pole or wire, aids Nature in breaking open the buds containing pollen and seed.

Particularly in the inter-lake districts of Manitoba, along the Fisher branch of the Canadian National Railways, and in northern Saskatchewan, is alfalfa regarded as one of the best of paying crops.

Let's Save About 65%

If it had not been for the patriots of the Revolutionary period the task of naming the counties of the various states of the union would have been beyond the ingenuity of the pioneers who settled them and the surveyors who fixed the rugged boundaries. There are enough Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Monroe, Franklin, Hamilton, Putnam and Warren counties to stretch from Maine to California. Altogether we have more than three thousand counties in these United States.

All these petty principalities were necessary in the early days. Communication was difficult; there were no telephones. Transportation was confined to oxcart and horse drawn vehicles. People living near the county line had to take a day or more to travel to the county seat. A county could not be much larger than the distance a sheriff could cover on horseback to convey a prisoner to the county jail.

But the railroad came and the telephone and the automobile and the necessity for narrow county boundaries disappeared, yet the counties continue. They continue because they provide jobs. Each county must have a court house, commissioners, a judge, a clerk and all the rank and file of officeholders who, as individuals, draw little enough but in the aggregate are a huge expense. Experts have estimated that at least 65% of all the money spent for county government could be saved by sensible consolidation.

Human nature being what it is, if I were a county commissioner or a deputy sheriff I would not like to have my job abolished. It would not please me to go on the dole or on work relief. Maybe nothing can be done about the county now but I hope some one will issue a loud call for county abolition some time soon. With all the policemen in New York City I personally feel no need of a sheriff. He can be liquidated any time and I don't think it will endanger me a bit.

Make Your Own Decisions

An ambitious and sensitive youngster confined to his home for some months by an accident finally was able to move about the house in a wheel chair. It was suggested that he might go out with his nurse to the park. He shied away from the suggestion. "I can't stand the idea of having everybody stare at me," he said.

At length he was persuaded to make a trial flight. The nurse wheeled him several blocks through the busy streets to a motion picture. He came home excited. "It was thrilling to see my father," he said, "and you know, not a single person on the street paid any attention to me."

His father said, "You have made one of the most important discoveries anyone can make in life. You have found out that the thing to do is to make your own decisions without too much regard for what they say."

Some years ago it was deemed important by the American up-and-comer to belong to more clubs than he could use and to own a higher priced car than he could afford. The size of one's car was a measure of success. A big car in front of the house was the advertisement of a big shot inside. In those days my wife received a visit at our country place from an inquisitive caller.

"What kind of a car does your husband drive?" she asked. My wife pointed to a couple of aged vehicles in the driveway.

The lady's face exhibited a shocked expression. "Why," she exclaimed, "I always understood that he was getting along very well."

Undoubtedly she was the pier reporter who would do the most good and so saved us from a considerable number of visits from people who did not want to run the risk of associating with failure.

"The Kidnap Murder Case"

by S. S. Van Dine

"Yes. Several days later, the same man came again, and an even more sinister-looking individual was with him. I got only the merest glimpse of them as Karpas led them into this room and closed the door."

"I hardly think these two mysterious callers," Kenyon Kenting commented with pompous finality, "have any connection with Karpas's kidnaping."

"Can you be sure of that, Mr. Kenting?" Vance asked coldly.

"Oh, no—no, no," the other replied apologetically. "I can't be sure. I merely meant it isn't logical to suppose that two men would expose themselves so openly if they contemplated a step attended by such serious consequences as a proven kidnaping."

"It might be, of course, as you say," he remarked lightly. "Also it might not be—what? Interesting speculation. But quite futile. And now I think we might go above, to Mr. Karpas's bedroom."

As we came out into the main hall, the door to a small room just opposite was standing ajar, and through it I saw what appeared to be a miniature museum of some kind. There was the standing cases set against the walls, and a double row of larger cases down the centre of the room.

"Ah! a collection of semi-precious stones," commented Vance. "Do you mind if I take a brief look?" he asked addressing Mrs. Kenting. "Tremendously interested in the subject, don't you know?"

"By all means. Go right in."

"Your own collection?" Vance inquired casually.

"Oh, no," the woman told him—somewhat bitterly, it seemed to me. "It belonged to Mr. Kenting senior. It was here in the house when I first came, long after his death."

Neatly arranged in the cases were specimens in various shapes and sizes of various semi-precious stones. Many of these gem-stones were beautifully cut and lavishly faceted, and I was admiring their lustrous beauty, impressed by what I assumed to be their great value, when Vance murmured softly:

"A most amazing and disquieting collection. Only one gem of real value here, and not a rare specimen among the rest. A schoolgirl's collection, really. Very queer. And there seem to be many blank spaces."

I looked at him in amazement. Then bedrooms—and they all checked up with the finger-prints on the silver toilet set and the glass in the bathroom. Can't be any one else's finger prints except the guy who lives here. Nothing new anywhere."

"Not a thing, Sarge—absolutely not a thing."

Karpas Kenting's bedroom was distinctly old-fashioned, and conventional in the extreme.

There were two windows in the room, one at the front of the house, overlooking the street; the other was in the east wall, and I recognized it at once as the window to which Mrs. Kenting said she had run in her flight.

"I—really, I can't remember. It must have been unlocked, or else I would probably have noticed it. I went out through the door and I don't recall unlocking it."

"When you came in here this morning, Mrs. Kenting, was this hall door locked or bolted?" Vance asked.

The woman looked uncertain and faltered in her answer.

"I—really, I can't remember. It must have been unlocked, or else I would probably have noticed it. I went out through the door and I don't recall unlocking it."

Vance went to the open window and looked down at the ladder.

As he did so Heath took from his pocket a knife such as boy scouts use and pried loose the thumb-nail which held a soiled and wrinkled sheet of paper to the broad window-sill.

He picked up the paper gingerly and handed it to Markham. The District Attorney took it and looked at it, his face grim and troubled.

I glanced over his shoulder as he read it. The paper was of the ordinary typewriter quality and had been trimmed irregularly at the edges to disguise its original size. On it were pasted words and separate characters in different sizes and styles of type, apparently cut from a newspaper. The uneven lines, crudely put together, read:

If you want him back safe price will be 50 thousands $ otherwise killed will let you no ware & when to leave money later.

This ominous communication was signed with a cabalistic signature consisting of two interlocking uneven squares which were outlined with black ink.

Vance glanced at it, as if it were of little interest to him, and read it through quickly with the suggestion of a cynical smile.

He was about to return the paper to Markham when he suddenly drew his hand back and made a new examination of the note.

"Interesting signature," he murmured. He took out his monocle and, carefully adjusting it, scrutinized the paper closely. "Made with a Chinese pen, I think."

"Not a thing, Sarge—absolutely not a thing."

also missing. Do you know where he kept it?"

"In the bathroom, of course," Mrs. Kenting seemed frightened and breathless. "In a little rack beside the medicine cabinet. I'll see." She stepped into the bathroom. After a moment she rejoined us.

"It's not there," she remarked dejectedly.

"That's quite all right," Vance returned. "Do you remember what clothes your husband was wearing last night when he went to the opening of the casino in New Jersey?"

"Why, he wore a tuxedo."

Vance walked quickly across the room and, opening the door beside the bathroom, looked into the narrow clothes closet.

"That's his dinner jacket to hang here in the closet, Mrs. Kenting. Has he more than one?"

The woman shook her head vaguely.

"And I suppose that Mr. Kenting wore the appropriate evening oxford with his dinner coat?"

"Naturally," the woman said.

"Amazing," murmured Vance. "Here are a pair of evening oxford standing neatly on the floor of the closet, and the oxford are dampish—it was rather wet out last night, don't you know, after the rain."

"I really don't understand, Mr. Vance."

"Are you familiar with your husband's wardrobe?" he asked.

"Of course I am," she returned.

"In that case," Vance said politely, "you can be of great assistance to me if you will glance through this closet and tell me whether anything is missing."

Mrs. Kenting looked Vance at the clothes closet.

"The Glen Urquhart suit is missing," she said. "It's the one he generally wears when he goes away for a week end or a short trip."

"Very interesting," Vance murmured. "And is it possible for you to tell me what shoes he may have substituted for his evening oxford?"

"Yes!" she said, and immediately, turning about to inspect the shoe rack in the closet. After a moment she again turned to Vance with a look of bewilderment in her eyes. "One pair of his boy tan slippers are not here," she announced in a hollow, monotonous tone. "That's what Karpas generally wears with his Glen Urquhart."

Vance turned back into the closet and, a few minutes later, he came out and walked to the window. Between his thumb and forefinger he held a small cut gem—a ruby, I thought—which he examined against the light.

"Not a genuine ruby," he murmured. "Merely a balala-ruby—the two are often confused. A necessary item to be sure, for a representative collection of gem-stones, but of little worth in itself."

"By the by, Mr. Kenting, I found this in the outer side-pocket of your husband's dinner jacket. I took the liberty of ascertaining whether he had transferred the contents of his pockets when he changed his clothes after returning last night. This bit of balala-ruby was all I found."

"Another thing that would interest me mildly," he remarked, looking vaguely before him, "is what kind of pajamas Mr. Kenting wears."

"Shantling silk," Mrs. Kenting asserted. She was looking directly at Vance but now her eyes shifted quickly to the bed.

"There's a pair on—" She left the sentence unfinished, and her pale eyes opened still wider. "They're not here," she exclaimed excitedly.

"This Shantling?" Vance asked.

"Yes—the shantling summer weight."

"Might easily be rolled up and placed in pocket?" she asked.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"I really don't know," Vance spoke with kindness. "I'm merely observing things. There is no answer as yet. It's most puzzling."

"I've been watching and listening attentively, with a shrewd, judicial air."

"I think, Mr. Vance," he said, "I know what is in your mind. Knowing the Kentings as well as I do, and knowing the circumstances of this household for a great number of years, I can assure you that it would be no shock to either of them if you were to state exactly what you think of this situation."

"I know that it would be heartening—I might even say, an act of mercy—if you stated frankly that you believe, as I am convinced you do, that Karpas planned this coup himself for reasons that are only too obvious."

"My dear sir!" returned Vance. "I would be glad to say anything which might relieve Mrs. Kenting's anxiety regarding the fate of her husband."

Hints for the Household

Conducted By Betty Barclay

SURPRISE DESSERTS
Are you one of those women who regard a remnet-custard as a plain dessert with or without a touch of fruit or a topping? If so, there are recipes for unusual remnet-custard dishes which will be a pleasant surprise to you. Are they good? Just place them before your family or your guests and you will have the answer to this:

PEACH SHORTCAKE
1 package lemon remnet powder
3 pint milk
4 pieces sponge cake (leftover cake may be used)
A few thin slices fresh or canned peaches

Place the pieces of cake in the bottom of the dessert dishes. Put two or three slices of the canned or fresh peaches over the top of each piece of cake. Make remnet-custard according to directions on package. Pour one piece of cake and peaches and set first—about 10 minutes. Then chill in refrigerator.

MAPLE TAPIOCA RENNET-CUSTARD
1 package maple remnet powder
1 pint milk
1/2 cup nut meats
1/2 cup tapioca pudding (or other leftover pudding)

Place two tablespoons tapioca pudding in bottom of each of 5 dessert dishes. Make remnet-custard according to directions on package. Pour at once over tapioca and let set firm—about 10 minutes. Then chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve sprinkle with nut meats.

ORANGE CHRYSANTHEMUM SALAD
(Serves 6)
6 small Sunbelt oranges
Lettuce
Apples

Make chrysanthemum cups of oranges. Cut the orange meat in pieces, combine with cold, slender pieces of apple and fill shells. Pass mayonnaise.

TOMATO MINT COCKTAIL
(Serves 8-10)
4 cups coarsely chopped tomatoes
2 tablespoons fresh mint, minced
2/3 teaspoon salt
2 cups water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon fine granulated sugar
4 drops tomato sauce

Combine tomatoes and mint, sprinkle with salt, and mix lightly. Let stand for 4 hours. Rub through a medium strainer, mix well, and store in refrigerator until ready for use.

CRABMEAT SALAD
(Serves 8)
1 pkg. salad gelatin (aspic)
1 cup boiling water
2 eggs
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon onion juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup flaked crabmeat
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Dissolve salad gelatin in boiling water. Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar and salt; add hot gelatin mixture, and beat.

But I assure you that at the moment the evidence does not warrant extending the comfort of any such belief.

At this moment there was an interruption. At the hall door appeared a short, middle-aged man with a sallow moon-like face, swollen in expression. He had on a shabby butler's livery which was too big for him and emphasized his awkward posture. A cringing and subservient self-effacement marked his general attitude despite his air of innocence.

"What is it, Weems?" Mrs. Kenting asked.

"There is a gentleman—an officer—at the front door," the butler answered in a surly tone, "who says he wants to see Sergeant Heath. He says his name is McLaughlin."

Heath nodded curiously and looked up at Markham.

"That's all right, Chief," he said. "McLaughlin is the man on the beat last night, and I left word at the Bureau to send him up here as soon as they could locate him. I thought he might know something, or maybe he saw something, that would give us a line on what happened here last night." Then he turned back to the butler. "Tell the officer to wait for me. The boys are in a few minutes."

was merely trying to teach a friend how to keep from destroying flavor—for flavor is all important at breakfast, and particularly in the first sip that games your lips.

Place the oranges in the refrigerator overnight—not the orange juice.

APRICOT FANCY
—will take everyone's fancy now that hot days demand long cool drinks. This one is heartily recommended not only because it is tart and refreshing, but because it is exceedingly easy to make, as well.

1/2 lb. dried apricots
2 cups boiling water
1 quart ginger ale

Cover the apricots with boiling water and cook slowly until tender, about 30 minutes. Press through sieve. Chill and add ginger ale mixing well. Pour over ice cubes and serve at once.

Apricot Fancie is a golden-colored beverage and nothing dresses it up more than a sprig of fresh mint, dusted with confectioners' sugar, tucked in the top of each glass.

AD (TOWARD)

VERTO (TO DRAW)

Perhaps you, also, have been forced to arrive at a rather uncomfortable conclusion from the things you have been seeing and the sounds you have been hearing recently . . . a conclusion that many advertisers do not know—or knowing, do not remember—just what that much misused and abused word ADVERTISING means.

Our dictionary tells us that Advertising is derived from the Latin Ad (toward) and Verto (to draw). It means to DRAW TOWARD.

Comes the question: Is it possible to attract the greatest number of buyers towards a specific product by imitation, senseless ballyhoo, deceit, or quicksand reasoning? Can it be accomplished by tingling language or by pictures of beautiful feminine limbs?

To draw toward—no mean job. But a job which can be done well, as demonstrated by the scattered few who are doing it. And to do it is not complicated. It requires the certain knowledge of how much benefit the buyers can get from your product. It requires an ability to give people this knowledge in a simple, truthful, interesting manner . . . and the courage to keep telling until the stars fall.

This screed opens with the word "perhaps". With your permission we shall end it the same way.

Perhaps it might be well for us to remember that the word Advertising does not mean cleverness, trickiness, sexology, wit, art nor self-glorification. It means to draw toward.

THREE LEAVES FOR POISON

Health authorities state that in many parts of Canada ivy poisoning is common. In those sections where it does occur, hikers should avoid touching poison ivy, poison sumac or anything resembling them. They should not walk through underbrush or let their clothing come in contact with any three-leaved vine.

Poison ivy, which sprouts over so much of the countryside, is also known as poison oak, poison vine and poison creeper. It can be recognized by its leaf, which is divided into three leaflets. Its flower is a small greenish one and its fruit pale green during the early part of summer. After ripening the fruit turns ivory white. The Virginia creeper, which is also very common, is not poisonous. It is distinguished by having five leaflets.

Far less common, but just as poisonous, is a large shrub, known as poison sumac, poison elder and poison ash. Its bark is light gray, its leaves compound from seven to fourteen inches long.

Persons who come in contact with poison ivy are likely to find a peculiar inflammation of the skin break out at the point of contact with the ivy, a few hours afterwards. Sometimes there is a slight redness and itching; with others, large swellings with extensive blisters, accompanied by a severe burning sensation.

When poison ivy or poison sumac has been accidentally touched, the hands should be immediately washed with coal oil, alcohol or non-styptic gasoline. If unable to obtain any of these at once, washing with strong soap is recommended. As cold creams and ointments may dissolve and spread the poison, they should not be used.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Many farmers decided last year to change their wheat variety; in Alberta from Garnet to Red Bob, and in the rest areas of Saskatchewan and Manitoba from Marquis or Ceres to either Thatcher, Renown or to Apex. Very special care must be used if during harvesting and threshing the new variety is not to become mixed with the old sort. From experience I have found the following methods will keep grain pure, at least from fields of five acres or more.

1. Stock the new variety on its own stubble, leaving a wide space between the stocks of the new and the old variety.
2. Clean the racks before hauling the new variety to the threshing machine.
3. Thresh the new wheat variety if possible after oats. (Oats can easily be separated from wheat with a seed cleaner).
4. Run the separator idle for ten minutes. Then clean out the two augers at the bottom of the machine, either by removing the bottom pans, or by passing a double-up sack slowly through each auger.
5. With a whisk broom clean the lodged grain from lodges and cracks inside the separator.
6. Run the separator idle for another five minutes and clean the augers again.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

Mrs. Alice Adams and daughters returned from Round Hill last week, where they have been visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peddie and daughters have returned from a six weeks' motor tour in Eastern Canada.

Miss Loris Armstrong was down from the city to visit for a few days with friends last week end.

Bob Howarth, of the Ford Garage, has discovered another good feature on a Ford car, in that it is not a menace to stray horses on the highway. He struck one last week near Viking, threw it over his car and didn't hurt the horse, but the car was not so fortunate.

Mr. E. E. Meyer is building a large barn on one of his farms south of Irma and hauling the lumber from town.

***You will find everything you need to build a granary at the Atlas yard. The lumber is all the right length so you will not have to do any cutting and the joint and studding are extra strong material. J. Welch.

Mr. Wm. Reynolds is enjoying the hospitality of Main Street after his long stay at the hospital.

Messrs. Erle Heffernan, Mike and Paul Stang visited friends in Macklin last week.

Mr. Harry Colford is painting some buildings at the Buffalo Park.

Mr. A. S. MacLellan, who is a patient at the hospital with an infected limb, is showing some improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Nelson and family, who have been on a motor vacation, returned home last week.

Mr. Slim Hammond, of the C.N.R. staff, was a visitor in Edmonton last week for a few days.

Mrs. Springer is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Kobchen, at Wetaskiwin.

***There have been 26% more car accidents this year than last year and they will continue to increase as more cars are used. No prudent man will own a car that is not fully insured. See Joe Welch.

Mr. Fred Thurston attended the druggists' convention in Edmonton last week.

Mrs. George Hudson, who has been spending some time at Clear Lake, left last week to visit relatives in Vermilion before returning to her home in Edmonton.

Mrs. Geo. Glass left for the coast last week, where Mr. Glass will join her and they will visit Mrs. Glass's folks in Portland, Oregon.

***See Dawcy and see well! At the Hotel from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday next.

Great excitement is evinced among the school children these days and the post office is besieged for news of the results of the mid-summer exams. Grade IX is not yet available. A full list will be published as soon as arranged by Principal Meade.

We are very pleased to see that the Town is making an effort to repair the streets which have been allowed to get into a very poor condition this summer.

Miss Isabel Ross, of Govan, Sask., was visiting Miss Hazel Stuart last week.

Mr. Tom Smith, foreman for the Waterman-Waterbury Company, is now in charge of the construction of the new school and work is proceeding rapidly.

Erle and Marion Lane, have returned from a motor trip to the western States.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Frickleton and Mrs. Carlisle drove to Irma on Saturday to visit Mr. Frickleton's brother, as Mrs. Carlisle is soon leaving for the coast to reside there.

***The Atlas Lumber Company are unloading a carload of coast fir granary lumber this week. See Joe Welch.

Mrs. Stiner, sr., who has been visiting friends and relatives here for the past month, returned to her home in Michigan last week.

The Beaupre family, of Bon Accord, who farmed here for several years were visiting friends in town last week.

Mrs. Perras's mother and nephew from Edmonton are visiting at her home.

Mrs. Selwick, who has been visiting Mrs. Snyder, left on Sunday to visit relatives in Edmonton before returning to her home in Ontario.

The rumors on Friday night last that Little Stanley Church had been lost were incorrect. The youngster was discovered at the home of some friends on Saturday morning.

Surely something can be done about the numbers of stray animals which infest the highway. It is getting very dangerous for night driving on the highway, and owners should be made to pay for damages which are suffered from this nuisance.

***Two shows at Elite theatre start again next week and Bill Brunner has quite a number of new releases booked now for this fall showing.

Mr. Hedley Abbott is working hard these days to get a start on making Wainwright a center for the new provincial youth training plan which is being outlined now for the winter's activities. He is now in the city for a 3-week instruction period.

Having enjoyed her trip through the western states and coastal cities, Miss Helen Clifton is now back at her duties at the phone office.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, of Medicine Hat, who were visiting Mrs. Elliott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lane, and spending a day or two at Clear Lake, have now returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Link left last week end to spend a short holiday with friends at the coast.
